PART VI—Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

Legislative Assembly Department.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 7th February, 1946.

L. A. BILL No. 11 OF 1946.

A Bill further to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 1916, and the Indian Succession Act, 1925.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (IV of 1882), the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 1916 (XV of 1916), and the Indian Succession Act, 1925 (XXXIX of 1925), for the purposes hereinafter appearing;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title.—This Act may be called the Transfer of Property and Succession (Amendment) Act, 1946.

2. Omission of section 13, Act IV of 1882.—Section 13 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, shall be omitted, and shall be deemed always to have been omitted.

3. Amendment of section 3, Act XV of 1916.—In clause (b) of section 3 of the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 1916, the figures "113", shall be omitted.

4. Omission of section 113, Act XXXIX of 1925.—Section 113 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, shall be omitted, and shall be deemed always to have been omitted.

5. Saving.—Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect or prejudice in any way any right, title or interest acquired by any person for valuable consideration before the commencement of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Under section 113 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, which replaced section 100 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, a bequest made to an unborn person subject to a prior bequest contained in the will is void unless it comprises the whole of the remaining interest of the testator in the thing bequeathed. In relation to transfers, an identical provision is contained in section 13 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.

2. Relying on certain judicial dicta the legal profession in India, particularly in the Presidency-towns, have for a long time past acted on the view that there was nothing in those sections to preclude, for instance, a trust which gave a life interest to the settlor's son and on the son's death to such of his sons as may survive him (although they may not be in existence at the time of the transfer), and, if the son left no sons, to the other sons of the settlor. This view is in conflict with certain observations of the Privy Council in the recent case of Sopher v The Administrator-General of Bengal (48, C.W.N. 585) and not only is the validity of a number of trusts likely to be impugned but the legal profession is faced with considerable difficulty in drawing up trusts involving gifts-over in favour of unborn persons.

3. The provisions of the sections in question are analogous to the English common law rule against remoteness of limitation or double possibilities laid down in Whitby v Mitchell which has now been abolished by section 161 of the Law of Property Act, 1925, as it overlapped the rule against perpetuities which was evolved subsequent to Whitby v Mitchell. There does not appear any reason why these provisions should be retained on the Indian statute-book as the rule against perpetuity has been provided for in section 14 of the Transfer of Property Act and section 114 of the Indian Succession Act. Indeed, in view of the decision of the Privy Council in Sopher's case two learned Judges of the Bombay High Court have doubted whether a gift-over in favour of unborn persons of the whole of the remaining interest in the property transferred would be valid if a power of revocation is reserved to the transferor or if a provision is made for the management of the interest of the unborn persons after their birth and during their minority even though such a provision does not affect the vesting of the interest in the unborn persons. In other words, section 13 of the Transfer of Property Act and section 113 of the Indian Succession Act have become almost unworkable and are likely to give rise to a large volume of litigation.

4. It is proposed, therefore, to repeal these sections with retrospective effect but not so as to affect or prejudice rights already acquired for valuable consideration.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

Legislative Assembly Department.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 12th February, 1946.

L. A. BILL No. 12 OF 1946.

A Bill to remove legal disabilities under Hindu Law in respect of marriage between Hindus.

WHEREAS it is expedient to remove certain existing disabilities under the Hindu Law in respect of marriage between Hindus;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title and extent.—(1) This Act may be called the Hindu Marriage Disabilities Removal Act, 194 .

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. Marriage between persons of same gotra or pravar or between persons of subdivisions of the same caste.—Notwithstanding any custom, rule or interpretation of the Hindu Law, a marriage, which is otherwise valid, shall not be invalid because—

(a) it is between Hindus belonging to the same gotra or pravar; or

(b) it is between Hindus belonging to the different subdivisions of the same caste.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Under the Hindu Law, a man cannot marry a girl of the same gotra or pravar. This rule is not necessary from the point of eugenics. It does not prevail among the Sudras; and is modified by custom among certain sections of the Brahmans and Kshatriyas. This rule of marriage has often been a barrier which is tried to be surmounted by some persons by following the procedure of getting the girl adopted by a stranger of a different gotra. There can, however, be no legal adoption of a girl under the Hindu Law. Public opinion in favour of the modification of this archaic rule has necessitated legislation in the Baroda and Indore States. As regards marriages between several subdivisions of a caste, there does not appear any legal prohibition under the law; but the general belief prevails that such marriages, which are rare, are not lawful. The only solution of such difficulties as are mentioned above would be a civil marriage. But there are many who have conscientious objections to a civil marriage.

This Bill will help the conscientious objectors to a civil marriage to get over the archaic rule prohibiting marriages between persons of the same gotra or pravar or between persons belonging to the different sub-castes of the same caste.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

Legislative Assembly Department.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 12th February, 1946.

L. A. BILL No. 13 OF 1946.

A Bill to give Hindu married women a right to separate residence and maintenance under certain circumstances.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for separate residence and maintenance under certain circumstances in the case of married Hindu women;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title, extent and commencement.—(1) This Act may be called the Hindu Married Women's Right to Separate Residence and Maintenance Act, 194 .

(2) It shall apply to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall come into force on the day of 194

2. Grounds for claiming separate residence and maintenance.—Notwithstanding any custom or law to the contrary a married Hindu woman shall be entitled to claim separate residence and maintenance from her husband on one or more of the following grounds, viz.—

(1) If the husband is suffering from leprosy, or any loathsome disease;

(2) If the husband is suffering from venereal disease;

(3) If the husband is an incurable lunatic;

(4) If the husband is guilty of cruelty towards her;

(5) If the husband deserts her;

(6) If the husband marries again;

(7) If the husband turns a recluse or changes his religion.

3. Jurisdiction.—Every suit under this Act shall be instituted in the civil court within whose jurisdiction the husband and wife ordinarily reside.

4. Amount of maintenance.—The amount of maintenance given by the courts to the wife shall not be less than one-fifth of the income of the husband.

5. Custody of the children.—The custody, maintenance and education of the children shall be as the courts decide.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. Even with regard to elementary rights of human beings, the position of a Hindu married woman is deplorable. This Bill intends to give her the right of separate residence and maintenance under unbearable conditions.

2. As to giving a Hindu wife the right of divorce there might be some slight difference of opinion in the Central Assembly, but as regards the right to give her separate residence and maintenance under certain inhuman conditions there was no difference of opinion. The House was unanimous in giving a Hindu wife this right. Accordingly a Committee was appointed by the Central Assembly, but unfortunately the Committee could not meet.

3. The Bill merely proposes to carry out what was unanimously agreed to in the Central Assembly.

14. Amendment of section 84, Act V of 1940.—In sub-section (2) of section 84 of the said Act, after clause (l) the following clause shall be inserted, namely:—

"(ll) make such supplementary provision as may be necessary or expedient to give effect to reciprocal arrangements entered into with Indian States under section 82A;".

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Trade Marks Act, 1940, is only effective in British India. There are many Indian States who have either passed Trade Marks Acts of their own on the lines of the Trade Marks Act of 1940, or propose to do so in the near future. The commercial community, however apprehend that separate registrations in a number of territories in India would be a great financial burden on them, apart from the embarrassment and confusion that would arise as the result of conflicting trade marks being registered in various territories in India. The States who have enacted or propose to enact legislation for trade marks registration have realised the seriousness of the problem, and have expressed their willingness to enter into reciprocal arrangements with the Government of India in this matter. The proposals in the Bill which are explained in the Notes on Clauses have therefore been designed with a view to avoiding conflict of registration in various Indian States and also to make trade marks registered in any territory effective in all territories in India in which trade marks legislation has been enacted. Provision has also been made for the delegation of the statutory powers of the Registrar of Trade Marks to other officers in addition to the Deputy Registrar.

2. Corresponding amendments will be made in the Trade Marks Acts of the Indian States so that infringement actions on trade marks and certification of trade marks registered in British India may be filed in any of the reciprocating Indian States, thus making it unnecessary for the proprietor of a trade mark to register a trade mark more than once in India.

AZIZ-UL-HUQUE.

NEW DELHI;
The 18th February, 1946.

Notes on Clauses.

Clause 2.—As a result of the reciprocity arrangements arrived at between British India and the Indian States, the work of the Trade Marks Registry will considerably expand. It has therefore been thought necessary to give the Registrar of Trade Marks the power to delegate his authority not only to the Deputy Registrar of Trade Marks but also to such other officers as are appointed by the Central Government.

Clause 3.—The amendment is for the purpose of taking into consideration all trade marks which are registered in India so as to avoid the registration of conflicting marks.

Clause 4.—The amendment is for the purpose of making the principle underlying section 19 applicable to trade marks which are registered in Indian States.

Clause 5.—(a) The purpose of omitting the words "if valid" is to make it impossible for any court to go into the question of validity of registration in an infringement action unless rectification proceedings are taken. Where a trade mark has been registered in British India and an infringement action is filed in an Indian State, it will not be open to the Indian State to challenge the validity of the registration in British India. That can be done only by the aggrieved party taking rectification proceedings in British India.

(b) This clause renumbers the present section as sub-section (1) and adds a further sub-section in order to implement the reciprocal arrangement which has been arrived at between British India and the Indian States.

Clause 6.—This clause is for the purpose of extending the protection of sub-section (3) of section 22 to trade marks which are registered in Indian States.

Clause 7.—This amendment is consequential on the provision now made by new sub-section (2) of section 21.

Clause 8.—An Explanation is added to the section to make it quite clear that a person who is registered in an Indian State is to be included in the expression "person aggrieved" so that he may be in a position to oppose the registration of a mark which conflicts with the mark registered by him in an Indian State.

Clause 9.—(a) and (b) correspond with the amendments in clause 5. Clause 5 deals with trade marks and clause 9 deals with certification trade marks.

Clause 10.—This clause corresponds with the amendment in sub-section (3) of section 22 referred to in clause 7.

Clause 11.—(a) Under section 68 it was first notified by Government that the section would come into operation on the 1st January 1946. Having regard to the representations made by the commercial community, that notification was cancelled and another notification issued to the effect that the section would come into operation on the 1st January 1947. It is considered doubtful whether the first notification can be superseded by the second. In order, however, to remove doubts, the section is amended so as to come into operation on or after the first day of January 1947, being the date fixed by the latest notification.

(b) The new sub-section (4) is suggested for the purpose of avoiding any hardship to an applicant who has made an application for the registration of a trade mark before the 1st January, 1947, and which has been unavoidably delayed. Sub-section (5) is consequential upon the reciprocal arrangement which has been arrived at between British India and the Indian States.

Clause 12.—This clause enables the Central Government to enter into reciprocal arrangements with Indian States, and when such reciprocal arrangements have been arrived at between British India and the Indian States, the names of such States will be notified in the official gazette. This clause and clause 5 and 9 are the main operative clauses in the Bill.

Clause 13.—This amendment is consequential on the suggested new section 82A.

Clause 14.—This enables the Central Government to make such rules as may be necessary having regard to the new sections introduced by this Bill.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

Legislative Assembly Department.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 6th March 1946:—

L. A. Bill No. 23 of 1946.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913);

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title, commencement and extent.—(1) This Act may be called the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 194

(2) It shall come into force on the 194

(3) It extends to the whole of British India including British Baluchistan and the Santhal Parganas.

2. Amendment of section 86F, Act VII of 1913.—The present section 86F of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), shall be renumbered as sub-section (1) of section 86F and to the section as so renumbered the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(2) Any director of the company acting in contravention of sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have vacated his office as a director of the company as from the date of such contravention and shall not be eligible for being elected a director of the company for a period of five years thereafter and shall also be punishable with fine which may extend to Rs. 1,000."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Section 86F was enacted to ensure honesty of dealings on the part of a company's director and to secure the interests of the company. However, it has been found that the provision is not enough to achieve this object. Instances have occurred where a director who infringed this provision managed to get elected director of the same company. The present section 86F which provides that the office of such a director shall be vacated does not act as a strong deterrent against any infringement of section 86F. The object of the present amendment is to provide such a deterrent by rendering him ineligible for election as a director of the company for a number of years and imposing a heavy fine on him.

(Dr.) G. V. DESHMUKH.

By order of the Governor,

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

Legislative Assembly Department.

The following Bill* was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 18th February 1946:—

L. A. BILL No. 17 OF 1946.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Coinage Act, 1906.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Coinage Act, 1906 (III of 1906), for the purposes hereinafter appearing;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title and commencement.—(1) This Act may be called the Indian Coinage (Amendment) Act, 1946.

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint.

2. Amendment of section 6, Act III of 1906.—In section 6 of the Indian Coinage Act, 1906, for the words "an eight-anna" the words "a fifty-cents" shall be substituted.

3. Insertion of new section 14 in Act III of 1906.—After section 13 of the Indian Coinage Act, 1906, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"14. Decimal system of coinage.—(1) The rupee, half-rupee and quarter-rupee shall be respectively equivalent to one hundred cents, fifty cents and twenty-five cents, and shall, subject to the provisions of section 12 and to the extent specified therein, be a legal tender in payment or on account accordingly.

(2) All coins issued under the authority of this Act in any denominations of annas and pies shall, to the extent specified in section 13, be a legal tender in payment or on account at the rate of sixteen annas or one hundred and ninety-two pies to one hundred cents, calculated in respect of any such single coin, or number of such coins, tendered at one transaction, to the nearest half-cent, or where the half-cent above and the half-cent below are equally near, to the half-cent below.

(3) All references in any enactment or in any notification, rule or order under any enactment or in any contract, deed or other instrument to any value expressed in annas and pies shall be construed as references to that value expressed in cents converted thereto at the rate specified in sub-section (2).".

*The Governor-General has been pleased to accord the previous sanction required by section 153 of the Government of India Act, 1935, to the introduction of this Bill in the Legislative Assembly.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The existing series of small coins below four annas which were introduced as a war-time expedient, have proved unsatisfactory and unpopular, and the large recoinage programme which their reversion to the pre-war standards entails offers a unique opportunity for introducing a decimal system of subsidiary coinage in place of the present coinage system whereunder the rupee is divided into 16 annas and each anna into 12 pies. Modern trade and commerce demand speed and simplicity in the methods of computation, to achieve which there is nothing to compete with the decimal system which has gradually displaced all other systems in most of the advanced countries of the world. Public opinion has expressed itself largely in favour of the adoption of decimal coinage in India and the object of this Bill is to amend the Coinage Act for this purpose.

A. ROWLANDS.

M. N. KAUL, Secy.

NEW DELHI;
The 4th February 1946.

Note on clause 3.

With the division of the rupee into 100 cents the existing coins will not correspond to an exact number of cents in all cases. During the transition period when both the anna and the cent coins will circulate side by side and prices might be quoted in terms of either, it is necessary to provide for conversion involving fractions of cents. As it is not proposed to issue cent coins of a smaller denomination than a half-cent, the Bill provides for conversions involving smaller fractions, to be made in rupees of any one transaction at the nearest half-cent, and where the amount involved is a quarter cent to the nearest half-cent below.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

Legislative Assembly Department.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 14th February, 1946:—

L.A. BILL No. 16 OF 1946.

A Bill further to amend the Factories Act, 1934.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Factories Act, 1934 (XXV of 1934), for the purposes hereinafter appearing;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title and commencement.—(1) This Act may be called the Factories (Amendment) Act, 1946.

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint.

2. Amendment of section 34, Act XXV of 1934.—In section 34 of the Factories Act, 1934 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), for the words "fifty-four" and "sixty" the words "forty-eight" and "fifty-four" shall be respectively substituted.

3. Amendment of section 36, Act XXV of 1934.—In section 36 of the said Act, for the words "ten" and "eleven" the words "nine" and "ten" shall be respectively substituted.

4. Amendment of section 38, Act XXV of 1934.—In section 38 of the said Act, for the word "thirteen" the word "twelve" shall be substituted.

5. Amendment of section 44, Act XXV of 1934.—For sub-section (4) of section 44 of the said Act, the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely:—

"(4) An order under sub-section (2) shall remain in force for such period, not exceeding two months from the date on which notice thereof is given to the manager of the factory, as may be specified in the order:

Provided that if in the opinion of the Provincial Government the public interest so requires, the Provincial Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, extend the operation of any such order for such period, not exceeding six months at any one time, as may be specified in the notification."

6. Amendment of section 45, Act XXV of 1934.—In the first proviso to sub-section (1) of section 45 of the said Act, for the word "thirteen" the word "twelve" shall be substituted.

7. Amendment of section 47, Act XXV of 1934.—In section 47 of the said Act, for sub-sections (1) and (2) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely:—

"(1) Where a worker—

(a) in a non-seasonal factory works for more than nine hours in any day or for more than forty-eight hours in any week, or

(b) in a seasonal factory works for more than nine hours in any day or for more than fifty-four hours in any week,— he shall be entitled in respect of the overtime worked to pay at the rate of one-and-a-half times his ordinary rate of pay."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Factories Act provides for maximum working hours of 54 and 60 for perennial and seasonal factories respectively. The daily limits are 10 and 11. The Washington Convention of 1919 prescribed a limit of 48 hours a week in industrial undertakings, though a special exemption was made for India where a limit of 60 hours was allowed. Accepting the recommendation of the Royal Commission on Labour the present limit of 54 hours was fixed for perennial factories and incorporated in the Factories Act, 1934. Over ten years have since elapsed and in more progressive countries like the United States of America, France and Belgium a 40-hour week is in operation in certain industries. The Government of India consider that a 54-hour week is indefensible and the limit should be reduced to 48 in all perennial factories, a corresponding reduction from 60 to 54 being made for seasonal factories. The Bill provides for this and also for a corresponding reduction in the daily limits by an hour a day.

2. Section 47 of the Act prescribes payment for overtime at two different rates. Overtime is to be discouraged as far as possible and there is little justification for having two rates. The Bill provides for payment for overtime at a uniform rate of one and a half times the ordinary rate. Also while there is no serious objection to the worker in a seasonal factory working up to 10 hours a day the payment for overtime should equitably be on a uniform basis and work in excess of a standard of 9 hours a day should be remunerated alike whether in a perennial or seasonal factory. Incidentally the Bill will rectify an omission in the Act in that no overtime payments have now been provided for working over 11 hours a day in a seasonal factory.

3. Exemptions granted during the war by which certain factories were permitted to work beyond the limits fixed in section 34 will have to continue for some time in a few cases, e.g., in the textile industry for so long as there is cloth shortage in the country. The amendment proposed in section 44 will achieve this object when such exemptions are required in the public interest.

4. The measure is urgent and will afford immediate relief to factory workers who admittedly have worked at great strain during the long period of the war.

5. Amendment of section 29, Act XVI of 1946.—(1) To sub-section (1) of section 29 of the said Act the following proviso shall be added, namely:—

"32A. Penalty for unfair practices.—Any employer who commits any unfair practice set out in section 28K shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It has long been felt that with existing conditions in India, there should be some obligation on the part of employers to recognise Trade Unions provided they are truly representative. The Trade Unions Act, 1926, provides for registration of the unions, but there is no obligation on the employer to recognise any registered trade unions. The Royal Commission on Labour pleading for recognition in the spirit as well as in the letter, deprecated obligatory recognition feeling that it would not secure genuine and full recognition which the Commission desired to seek. The position has not, however, improved in regard to voluntary recognition by employers. The Bill, therefore, provides for obligatory recognition of representative trade unions. The question as to whether a trade union is representative or not will, in the event of dispute, be considered by an Industrial Court to be set up for the purpose.

2. The Bill specifies certain acts as unfair practices on the part of recognised trade unions and certain other acts as unfair practices on the part of employers. Provision has been made enabling withdrawal of recognition where an unfair practice is committed by the executive or members of a recognised trade union or when the trade union has ceased to be a representative trade union or on the failure of the trade union to submit any return prescribed in the Bill. An unfair practice on the part of an employer has been made an offence punishable with fine.

depreciation calculated at the rate in force on that date that would have been allowable had the building been used for the aforesaid purposes since the date of its acquisition by the assessee and had the provisions of this Act relating to the allowance for depreciation been in force on and from the date of acquisition:"

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to give concessions to the tax-payer mainly for the purpose of encouraging the modernisation and rehabilitation of industry and trade. The proposals include provisions for special initial depreciation allowances in respect of new buildings, plant and machinery, for the allowance of expenditure (both capital and revenue) on scientific research, for obsolescence allowances in respect of buildings used for the purpose of a business, profession or vocation and for obsolescence allowances in respect of machinery or plant that has been demolished or destroyed. In order to encourage the erection of new buildings in the next two years the proposals also include provisions for a two years exemption in respect of such buildings the income of which is assessable under the head "property" and an additional initial depreciation allowance of 5 per cent. in respect of such buildings if used for the purpose of a business, profession or vocation. The clauses are explained in the notes below.

A. ROWLANDS.

NEW DELHI;
25th February 1946.

NOTES ON CLAUSES.

Clause 2.—If a building the income from which is assessable under the head "property" is begun and completed between the 1st April, 1946, and the 31st March, 1948, the income therefrom would be exempt under this clause for two years from the date of completion. The clause mainly applies to buildings which are not used by the owner for the purposes of his business.

Clause 3 (a)(i) proposes special initial depreciation allowances for new buildings, plant and machinery. In the case of buildings the rate will be 10 per cent. of the cost and in the case of plant and machinery 20 per cent. But for buildings begun and completed between the 1st April, 1946, and the 31st March, 1948, the rate will be 15 per cent. The allowance is not to be deducted in computing the written-down value and it is not to be given for excess profits tax purposes (see Finance Bill).

Clause 3(a)(ii) amends sections 10(2) (vii). At present what is known as "obsolescence allowance' is given only if plant or machinery is sold or discarded and it is not given in the case of buildings. The amendment proposes to extend the allowance to buildings and to enlarge it so as to include the demolition or destruction of the buildings, plant or machinery. But if any insurance, salvage or compensation moneys are received in respect of these assets, these moneys, if they are less than the written-down value minus the scrap value, will be deducted from the allowance admissible and, if they are greater, the excess will be taxed to the extent of the difference between the original cost and the written-down value less the scrap value. As clause (vii) stands at present, if machinery or plant is sold for more than its original cost, the excess over the original cost is taxable. As now proposed to be amended, the excess over the original cost will not be taxable.

Clause 3(a)(iii).—This clause proposes to allow expenditure on scientific research related to a business or to the class of business carried on. The first two items, viz., revenue expenditure by the assessee on such scientific research and sums paid to research associations or institutions, will be allowed in the assessments of the profits of the year in which the expenses were incurred. The other item, viz., capital expenditure, will be allowed in five consecutive equal instalments and will be given also in respect of such expenditure incurred not more than three years before the commencement of the business. Provision is also made for allowing the difference between the residual value of an asset representing such expenditure and the amount allowed in the yearly instalments. Other provisions in connection with the allowance safeguard the revenue position, e.g., prevent double allowances or excessive allowances. A provision in the Finance Bill is designed to give retrospective effect for one year to the grant of this allowance.

Clause 3(b) is designed to safeguard the revenue against an assessee who might seek to take unfair advantage of the provisions regarding depreciation and obsolescence. As the law stands and as it is proposed to be amended in this Bill, apart from this sub-clause, an assessee might, for example, occupy a building as a residence for many years and when the time to scrap it was drawing near bring it into use for the purpose of his business. Without this amendment he would, if he scrapped or demolished the building a year later, get an allowance of the whole of the difference between the original cost and one year's depreciation allowance. It is proposed therefore that in cases like this the written-down value will be the cost less the depreciation that would have been allowable at existing rates and on the written-down value basis if the building had been used for the purposes of the business from the date of its acquisition. It is not proposed to give retrospective effect to the provision.

Clause 4 is consequential on clause 3(a)(ii).

Clause 5.—Under the proviso in question tax is leviable at the maximum rate where the income is not specifically receivable on behalf of any one person or where the individual shares are indeterminate and unknown. This causes hardship in some cases, for example, in cases of trusts for the maintenance of widows and children where the total income is small. The amendment proposes therefore that tax should be levied in such cases at the rate applicable to the trust income.
